HEALTH REGULATIONS

Before visiting Turkey you may need to get the following vaccinations or take the following precautions. It is best to seek medical advice as your individual health and your planned activities will be a factor. Seek advice 4-6 weeks before travel.

Required Vaccinations

- There are no vaccinations required for entry to Turkey.

Routine and Recommended Vaccinations and Medications

- It is recommended that travellers are up to date on routine vaccinations including measles-mumps-rubella (MMR), diphtheria-pertussis-tetanus (DPT), varicella (chickenpox), polio, and yearly flu shots.
  - A hepatitis A vaccination is recommended as travellers may contract hepatitis A through contaminated food or water in Turkey, regardless of where they are eating or staying.
  - A hepatitis B vaccination is recommended for those who may have sexual contact with a new partner, who may get a tattoo or piercing, or have any medical procedures.
  - A typhoid vaccination is recommended for most travellers, especially those staying with friends or relatives, visiting smaller cities or rural areas, or for those that are adventurous eaters.
  - A rabies vaccination is recommended for those planning an outdoor holiday, for wildlife professionals such as veterinarians and researchers, for those who are taking a long trip or moving to Turkey, and children as they are more likely to receive animal bites.
- Malaria is a risk in Turkey. Travellers to certain areas who are at higher risk for complications from malaria (such as pregnant women) may need to take anti-malarial medicine. Consultation with a doctor regarding this medication should be sought prior to travel.

General Advice

H5N1 Avian Influenza cases have been reported in Turkey. For further information, please visit the CDC Avian Flu Advice.

For more detailed information, please visit the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention \(CDC\).

HEALTH REGULATIONS

Before visiting Indonesia you may need to get the following vaccinations or take the following precautions. It is best to seek medical advice as your individual health and your planned activities will be a factor. Seek advice 4-6 weeks before travel.

Required Vaccinations

- There is no risk of yellow fever in Indonesia. The government of Indonesia requires proof of yellow fever vaccination from travellers 9 months of age or older who are arriving from a country with risk of yellow fever. For further information on this recommendation, please visit the CDC Yellow Fever Advice.

Routine and Recommended Vaccinations

- It is recommended that travellers are up to date on routine vaccinations including measles-mumps-rubella (MMR), diphtheria-pertussis-tetanus (DPT), varicella (chickenpox), polio, and yearly flu shots.
